

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's learn about baseball's greatest honor!

Learning Outcome

Describe detailed facts about events or actions in work and social contexts, in written or spoken situations.

Ask your partner:

- Which sports hall of fame would you most like to visit?
- If you could create a hall of fame, what activity or profession would it honor?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about leisure time, culture and sports.
- I can report facts about events and actions.
- I can express true, untrue and possible events in present and past.

Let's Explore!

Take me out to the ball game*.

* "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" is a well-known baseball song.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Where is the "home of baseball"? Most baseball aficionados will probably tell you it's in Cooperstown, New York.

Cooperstown is a small village that has less than 3,000 residents. It was erroneously believed to be the place where the modern game of baseball was invented.

Today Cooperstown is the home of the Baseball Hall of Fame, a museum that pays tribute to the legends of baseball. The hall of fame was founded in 1939, and players like Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth were enshrined in the inaugural class.

To be eligible for the Hall of Fame, certain criteria must be met. First, the player must have been retired for at least five years. A managerial or advisory position can be held, but the candidate cannot be an active player. Next, ballots must be cast by the Baseball Writers' Association. Finally, the player may be voted in if they are included on at least 75% of the ballots. No player has ever been included on 100% of ballots, but legendary pitcher Tom Seaver came the closest. He was elected with 99% of the vote.

During the summer months, the number of patrons visiting the museum each day can be greater than the number of people who live in Cooperstown!

The museum has the greatest baseball collection in the world, including uniforms, photographs, and other memorabilia from the most famous teams and players.

It is also a source of information for serious baseball fans. Fans can learn the history of the sport and see the records of their favorite teams. For baseball lovers, the museum is a dream come true.

Let's Practice!

Some people love sports. Others have different interests.

Instructions: Classify the expressions into the given categories. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

baseball aficionados love Cooperstown check memorabilia from famous movies

be eligible for the Baseball Hall of Fame

be eligible for a public office

pay tribute to legends of baseball

see the records of public buildings pay tribute to ancient cultures

jazz aficionados love Ella Fitzgerald

see the records of your favorite teams

check memorabilia from famous teams

Expressions that are related to sports

Expressions that are not related to sports

Let's Practice!

What can be said about players eligible to enter the Baseball Hall of Fame?

Instructions: Proofread the sentences. Circle the incorrect words. Rewrite the sentences correctly. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. Certain criteria must be meet if a baseball player wants to be included in the Hall of Fame.

2. A player must be retiring for at least five years.

3. Active players cannot being chosen.

4. Ballots must be casted by the Baseball Writers' Association.

5. A player may be voting if he is included in at least 75% of the ballots.

Extension Activity

Create a hall of fame.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Choose a profession or sport, such as cooking or cycling.
- Write down a list of the ten most notable names in your chosen profession or sport.
- Choose the three that you would first elect into your new hall of fame.
- Write a few sentences on why you chose each to be in the inaugural class.
- With a partner, give a short induction speech for each person.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I create a list of worthy hall-of-fame candidates.

☐ ☐

I write short descriptions about notable people.

☐ ☐

I give a speech honoring someone's career.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- aficionado (noun): someone who is enthusiastic about a particular sport or hobby; a fan e.g. Most baseball aficionados will probably tell you it's in Cooperstown, New York.
- hall of fame (noun): a building that honors the famous people to have participated in a particular activity e.g. Today Cooperstown is the home of the Baseball Hall of Fame.
- to pay tribute (expression): to honor
e.g. The Hall of Fame is a museum that pays tribute to the legends of baseball.
- patron (noun): a paying customer
e.g. During the summer months, the number of patrons visiting the museum each day can be greater than the number of people who live in Cooperstown!
- memorabilia (noun): objects that are connected to the history of a particular activity or event e.g. The museum has the greatest collection of memorabilia from the most famous teams and players.
- to enshrine (verb): to put something in a respected or honored place e.g. Players like Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth were enshrined in the inaugural class.
- eligible (adjective): satisfying the conditions necessary for inclusion
e.g. To be eligible for the Hall of Fame, certain criteria must be met.

Learning Points

Simple Past Passive - Common Mistakes

You use the active voice when you want the 'doer' of the action to be the subject.

Example: Roger hit the ball with the bat.

You use the passive voice when you want the 'receiver' of the action to be the subject.

Example: The ball was hit by Roger.

Most of spoken English uses active speech. In active sentences, the subject is the focus of the sentence.

Example:

Active sentence: Lorena finished the project.

Passive sentence: The project was finished by Lorena.

A passive sentence puts the emphasis on the object of the active sentence. It now becomes the subject and focus of the passive sentence.

It is not always necessary to mention the object in a passive sentence.

Example:

The old theater was redecorated.

You make the passive form of a verb by using tenses of the be verb followed by the past participle.

Example:

Active sentence: My son broke the vase.

Passive sentence: The vase was broken by my son.

The Simple Past passive form is:

was/were + past participle

You use the Simple Past passive to talk about a situation that is finished.

Here are some common mistakes you need to avoid when using the Simple Past Passive.

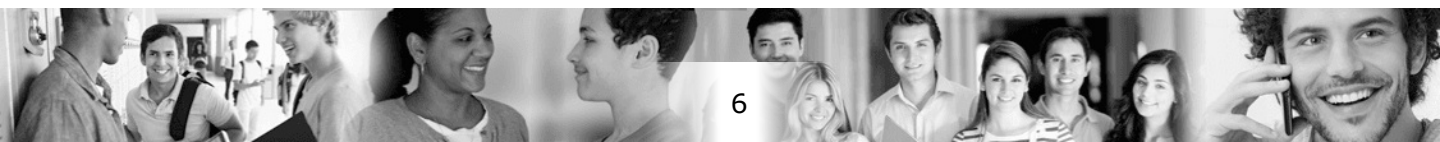

Learning Points

Common mistake	Correct version	Why?
Modern baseball created in Cooperstown.	Modern baseball was created in Cooperstown.	Simple Past passive form: was/were+past participle of the verb.
Modern baseball was create in Cooperstown.	Modern baseball was created in Cooperstown.	Simple Past passive form: was/were+past participle of the verb.
An exciting game was playing at that time.	An exciting game was being played at that time.	Past passive form of a continuous tense: was/were+being+past participle of the verb.
The players have already be selected .	The players have already been selected .	Passive form of a perfect tense: have/has/had+been+past participle of the verb.

Examples:

- The hall of fame was founded in 1939.
- Players like Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth were enshrined in the inaugural class.

Learning Points

Passive of Modal Verbs in the Present

You use the Simple Present passive form of modal verbs to put the emphasis on the receiver of the action.

As for other verbs, the Simple Present passive form of modal verbs puts the emphasis on the receiver of the action and not on the doer of the action.

Passive modal forms are often impersonal and do not require an object.

Example:

- Sports shoes must be worn on the field.
- Baseball may be played on Tuesdays.

The structure of Simple Present passive for modal verbs is:

subject+modal verb+be+past participle of verb

You can use Simple Present Modal verbs to convey a general obligation or a permission.

Active	Passive
Children can play football on Saturday.	Football can be played on Saturday.
Children can buy snacks after the game.	Snacks can be bought after the game.
Players should wear sports shoes at all times.	Sports shoes should be worn at all times.
All players must wear team colors.	Team colors must be worn by all players.

Examples:

- To be eligible for the Hall of Fame, certain criteria must be met.
- The player may be voted in if they are included on at least 75% of the ballots.

